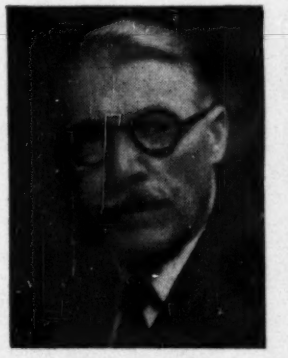
Education and Industry - 4

The New Look in Business Studies

By J. G. McMeeking, C.B.E., J.P., Chairman of the Ministry of Education's Advisory Committee on Further Education for Commerce.

Technical education in industry is one of the important points which will be stressed during National Productivity Year which opened, under the patronage of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, on November 14, 1962. This series of articles by industrial and educational experts has been arranged for the* Board of Trade Journal *by the Ministry of Education, and the Scottish Education Department.

I DO NOT PROPOSE to state the case for education for business at all levels from the manipulative to the managerial. It is now essentially the same as for education in the technologies, and I do not think that on the commercial side we can afford to lag behind either the technologist or our competitors abroad. I have seen at first hand what is being done on the Continent and in the United States, and they are setting high standards which we shall have to match if we are to hold our own.



The purpose of this article is to draw attention to the important and – I think – exciting developments in the provision for business studies which have taken place in our technical colleges and the colleges of commerce in the last few years. In England and Wales this is the outcome of the reorganization of the existing system which was initiated in 1957 by the National Advisory Council on Education for Industry and Commerce under Sir Harry Pilkington's chairmanship, and was based on the report of its Advisory Committee on Further Education for Commerce which was published in 1959.* Business and industry were represented on the committee along with educational interests.

While what is said below relates primarily to England and Wales, similar changes are in train in Scotland, a note about which appears at the end of the article.

In addition to courses leading to professional qualifications and in shorthand, typing and other techniques, the colleges now for the first time offer a progressive system of courses beginning with the Ordinary National Certificates and Diplomas in business studies and leading through these to the Higher National Certificates and Diplomas. Plans are advanced for the introduction of a new national award for junior office workers and a committee of the National Advisory Council is examining the possibility of a high level award which would be of the same academic standard as an Honours degree or a Diploma in Technology.

For detailed information about the courses which are provided in their own areas firms should ask the office of the local education authority or the college. The following is an outline of the new system.

Courses for sixteen-year-olds

1. The Ordinary National Certificate. For the boy or girl of sixteen or over with passes in three or more subjects at G.C.E. 'O' level (of which one must be English) there are two possibilities. For those who want to enter employment and continue their studies part-time, there is the two-year part-time day course leading to Ordinary National Certificate in business studies. This is a broadly based course, in which four subjects a year must be studied. As is usual in National Certificate courses, colleges are allowed considerable flexibility in deciding what subjects shall be included. Only 'structure of commerce' is an obligatory subject in the first year, and English and economics in the second year. Other subjects commonly included are accounting, general principles of law, statistics and modern languages. In view of the obvious

More than 200 million aerosols were sold in Europe last year. Our cover photograph shows a selection of British aerosols filled by the Aerosol Packaging Co. Ltd., of Bracknell, Berkshire, 10 to 15 per cent. of whose production is already being exported. With a new factory now being built for the filling of pharmaceutical aerosols, A.P.C. plan an increased export drive this year.

importance of knowledge of modern languages for those concerne with the country's export effort, the taking of a modern language i encouraged.

An interesting feature of the new course is that, in addition to taking an examination in the final year, the student is required to submit an extended essay of between 3,000 and 5,000 words on a commercial subject, prepared over the whole period of his course under the guidance of his tutor. This is a novel requirement and I believe that it will prove to be a very good one for training students in the effective use of English for business purposes. All of us with experience in business know how much room for improvement there is in this respect, and I am sure that part of the trouble has lain in the teaching of English as the literary rather than the practical subject which it also is or should be.

The Ordinary National Certificate in business studies, the standard of which is approximately that of the 'A' level or of the intermediate examination of a major professional body, may be regarded either as a qualification in its own right or as a step towards the attaining of a Higher National Certificate or a professional qualification.

2. The Ordinary National Diploma. For those of sixteen or over who wish to continue their studies full-time, or on a sandwich basis, there are courses leading to the Ordinary National Diploma in business studies which normally last two years full-time (or equivalent sandwich). For these also the normal entry qualification is three passes at G.C.E. 'O' level, one of which must be English. These too are broadly based courses. Students must offer not less than five subjects and not more than seven in the final examination, invariably including England and economics, accounting, economic history, economic geography and law are also required subjects. Optional subjects include mathematics, statistics, mercantile law and one or two modern languages. All courses also include some general education; and there is provision for students to take shorthand and typing and other ancillary subjects if they wish.

Both the Ordinary National Certificate and the Ordinary National Diploma courses are designed to give students a good general preparation for business while at the same time providing an introduction to more specialized studies which will enable them to aim at professional qualifications if that is their intention.

Advanced courses for those of eighteen or over

For those of eighteen or over who have either obtained an Ordinary National Certificate or Diploma in business studies or have G.C.E. 'A' level qualifications, there are again two alternatives.

1. The Higher National Certificate in business studies. For those wishing to study part-time there are courses for the Higher National Certificate in business studies, which is of two years' duration. Candidates must have either an Ordinary National Certificate or Diploma or two passes in relevant subjects at G.C.E. 'A' level, or alternatively they must have completed to the satisfaction of the college principal a preliminary course commenced after the age of eighteen. Principals also have discretion exceptionally to admit students over the age of twenty-one who do not satisfy any of these requirements but are judged capable of completing the course satisfactorily.

The Higher National Certificate courses are designed for students wanting to carry their studies to an advanced level whether or not they are aiming at professional qualifications. Candidates are normally required to take three subjects. The basic subject is applied economics which is compulsory in both years; but beyond this there is a wide choice from subjects which include amongst others: advanced accounting, human relations, commercial or industrial law, secretarial practice, costing, marketing, purchasing, and modern languages (including a study of the markets in the country whose language is studied).

2. The Higher National Diploma in business studies. For those who want, at eighteen or later, to follow a full-time course in business studies there are two-year full-time courses (or three-year sandwich) leading to an entirely new award, the Higher National Diploma in business studies. They provide a combination of general and specialized education in business studies, up to a level somewhat more advanced than that of the Higher National Certificate, and approaching that of a university pass degree. Normally five subjects a year are taken, though up to two additional subjects may be offered. Again the core subject is economics; but apart from this there is again a wide variety of choice; and students may if they wish devote a substantial proportion of their time to specialist studies, for example, sales and marketing. All courses include some general education; and all students are required to undertake a 'project' on a topic of commercial interest, leading to the submission of an extended essay on which they are examined orally.

Before actually receiving a Higher National Diploma full-time students are required to produce a certificate from an employer showing that they have had at least twelve months of business or administrative experience. The minimum standard for entering a Higher National Diploma course is one pass at G.C.E. 'A' level, but in the pilot courses which were run it was found that most of the students had in fact obtained at least two 'A' levels.

Opportunities for learning foreign languages. In all of these courses one or more foreign languages can be taken, though deliberately this has not been made compulsory. Where, however, a student or his firm wishes him to take foreign languages this should present no difficulty if the college is satisfied that he has the aptitude. The teaching of foreign languages is of course a field in which major advances have been made in recent years both here and abroad, but some of the technical colleges have been pioneers in developing the new techniques. A number of leading colleges, for example, either already have installed or are installing language laboratories, and these and others are experimenting with modern intensive methods of language teaching.

Success of the new arrangements. Conditions for the rapid development of business studies up to degree level are perhaps more favourable than they have ever been. One important factor will continue to be the large increase in the number of boys and girls coming up from the schools with good G.C.E. qualifications, whether at 'O' or at 'A' level. Thus, between 1952 and 1961 the age group in school taking G.C.E. 'O' level increased by 43 per cent. and the number of 'O' level passes increased by 92 per cent. At 'A' level 94 per cent. more pupils obtained 117 per cent. more passes. By November 1961, there were already well over 10,000 students in the new National Certificate and Diploma courses which had only begun in September of that year. The first Higher National Diploma courses did not begin till the autumn of 1962. Early returns show that some two dozen full-time and sandwich courses with about 380 students have started. The number of Ordinary National Certificate courses has already doubled as compared with the position under the old scheme, and it is especially encouraging that the number of Higher National Certificate courses has increased several times over. The Ordinary and Higher National Diplomas are of course innovations.

The Commercial Apprenticeship Scheme of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce

I should like to make special mention of the commercial apprenticeship scheme sponsored by the Association of British Chambers of Commerce. This provides a comprehensive and systematic four-year apprenticeship under either a standard letter of appointment or an indenture, and combines practical training on the employer's premises with a course or courses of business studies in a technical college or college of commerce. It is specially designed to be taken in two parts so that it can be geared in with the Ordinary National Certificate and Higher National Certificate courses in business studies in the colleges. During the apprenticeship the employer must undertake to release the employee for at least one working day (or day's equivalent each week); and the employee will be expected to attend college on one evening a week as well.

Scotland

In 1961, following a recommendation of the Scottish Technical Education Consultative Council, the Secretary of State established the Scottish Council for Commercial Education representative of the professional bodies, education – including both providing authorities and teachers – and industry and commerce 'to keep under review the development of commercial education in Scotland, to devise courses, to conduct examinations and to award appropriate certificates'.

In addition to devising courses and offering awards in the field of clerical and secretarial studies, the council caters for students aspiring to posts demanding professional competence through its Senior Certificate and Advanced Certificate courses, success in the first of which affords varying degrees of exemption from the intermediate examinations of the professional bodies represented on the council. The requirements for admission to the Senior Certificate course are four passes including English on the Ordinary grade of the Scottish Certificate of Education. The course normally involves two years of part-time study. The Advanced Certificate course also requires at least two years of part-time study, beyond the Senior Certificate level.

Full-time courses are available at the Scottish College of Commerce, Glasgow. A four-year course leads to the Associateship, and a three-year course to the Diploma, of the college. The entrance requirements for the Associateship, which is awarded with honours, are comparable to those for admission to a degree course; and the requirements for the Diploma are comparable to those for entry to a Higher National Diploma course. Both awards are highly regarded in the commercial world.

The future

There is every reason to look forward confidently to the future. More and more boys and girls with good academic qualifications will be looking for business careers, and increasingly they will expect systematic education and training such as is taken for granted by those who take technical jobs in industry. But a second and perhaps even more important factor is the changing climate of opinion and the growing awareness of the need for well thought out education and training for business. Whether or not we enter the Common Market, the increasing competition at home and abroad which British business must expect is bound to increase the need and to stimulate the demand.

Temporary Exemptions of Some Chemical Goods

THE BOARD OF TRADE announced on September 7, 1962, (see Board of Trade Journal dated September 7, 1962 page 504) that temporary exemptions from import duty of goods (mainly chemicals) due to expire on January 1, 1963, were being reviewed. As a result of this review the Treasury have made The Import Duties (Temporary Exemptions) (No. 6) Order, 1962 (Statutory Instruments 1962 No. 2745).

The First Schedule to the Order provides for the exemption from import duty from January 1, 1963, until January 1, 1964 (except where some other date is shown) of certain goods (mainly chemicals), at present liable to import duty.

The Second Schedule to the Order provides for the extension until January 1, 1964, (except where some other date is shown), of temporary exemptions from import duty (mainly of chemicals) which would otherwise have expired on January 1, 1963.

The Third Schedule to the Order provides for the revision of some of the descriptions of goods, the temporary exemptions from duty of which are extended, by the Second Schedule of the Order, under the existing descriptions. As from January 1, 1963, it is the revised description which will determine the scope of the exemption.

The Order came into operation on January 1, 1963.

Date of Termination of Temporary Exemptions Order

IT HAS BEEN the practice in recent years for temporary exemptions from import duty to terminate at the beginning of the first day of the month. Complaints have been received by Customs & Excise about this arrangement when the first day of the month has fallen on a Monday, because importers have been unable to take advantage of an expiring temporary exemption in the case of goods which have been imported on the preceding Sunday or late on the Saturday, as there are no facilities for the entry of goods with Customs on Sundays or in advance of importation when a duty is about to be reimposed. It has, therefore, been decided that in future temporary exemptions from import duty will, wherever possible, not terminate at the beginning of a Monday; they will instead terminate at the beginning of the first Wednesday of the month. Thus, in the Order which came into effect on January 1, 1963, the terminal dates are March 6, 1963, May 1, 1963, July 3, 1963, September 4, 1963 and January 1, 1964.

Application for Temporary Exemption from Import Duty

THE BOARD OF TRADE are considering an application for the temporary exemption from import duty of the material listed below on the grounds that this material is not made in this country or the Commonwealth or the supply available from these sources is not substantial having regard to the existing United Kingdom demand.

Representations are invited from manufacturers in this country or agents of Commonwealth manufacturers, who consider they are, or will be within a reasonable period, in a position to supply a substantial proportion of the United Kingdom demand for this material, or who are interested in its future production.

Temporary exemptions come into effect on the operative date of the Treasury Order in which the materials are specified and normally continue until the end of the current calendar year, when they are reviewed.

Letters, giving the respective reference shown below, should be addressed to Tariff and Import Policy Division, Board of Trade, Horse Guards Avenue, London, S.W.1, preferably through a Trade Association, and should be received by January 18, 1963.

The Import Duties (General) (No. 14) Order 1962

THE TREASURY have made the Import Duties (General) (No. 14) Order 1962, which:—

(1) removes the import duty (both full and EFTA rates) on dried citrus peel.

(2) changes the classification of pitch-fibre pipes,

(3) reduces the full and EFTA rates of import duty on some kinds of tanning machinery.

The Order came into operation on Janaury, 1, 1963, and has been published as Statutory Instruments 1962, No. 2744.

No further applications will be accepted by the Board of Trade for the remission of duty under Section 6 of, and paragraph 1 (b) of the Fourth Schedule to, the Import Duties Act, 1958, in respect of the tanning machines classifiable under the following tariff headings unless they were ordered by a user on or before Dec. 31, 1962:—

84.42 (A) 'Machines for preparing, tanning or finishing hides, skins or leather'

84.17 (B) (1) 'Machines for the drying of hides, skins or leather, being dryers incorporating vertically suspended plates on which the material is pasted.'

84.21 (C) 'Spraying machines incorporating an endless conveyor, one or more spray guns having a reciprocating or rotary motion and mechanism which cuts off the spray automatically when the material is not directly beneath the gun or guns.'

84.22 (F) 'Stacking machines designed for stacking hides, skins or leather of irregular lengths, and incorporating devices which adjust the stacking mechanism automatically according to the length of each piece of material.'

Applications in respect of such goods must be posted to the Board of Trade not later than January 31, 1963 unless there are exceptional reasons why applications cannot be made by that date.

Note: The Board of Trade announced on July 19, 1962, that they were considering a proposal from the British Leather Federation and the manufacturers of the machinery in question for a reduction in the rate of duty and the cessation of the issue of duty-free licences under Treasury Direction in respect of goods, defined for tariff purposes as in the Notice above.

The President of the Board of Trade has decided to accept the proposal.

Import Duty Drawback on Some Copolymer Blends

THE TREASURY have made the Import Duty Drawback (No. 12) Order, 1962.

This Order extends until December 31, 1963, the operation of the drawback scheme for certain imported copolymer blends used in the production of exported tubes and fittings and reduces the rate of drawback applicable thereto.

The Order came into operation on January 1, 1963, and has been published as Statutory Instruments 1962, No. 2743.

Imports of Pork from the Dollar Area

THE BOARD OF TRADE, in Notice to Importers No. 1025, dated December 31, 1962, announce that the quota for imports of pork from the Dollar Area in 1963 will again be 25,000 tons. Licences will cover 'Pork, chilled, fresh or frozen, falling under heading 02.01(A) of the Customs Tariff' and will be valid until December 31, 1963.

Applications will be considered from traders who held licences under the 1962 arrangements or from others who can establish a direct interest in the trade. Application forms (TIP/A or ILB/A) should reach the Board of Trade (Tariff and Import Policy Division), Horse Guards Avenue, London, S.W.1, by January 14, 1963. Page 1 should be completed; on page 2, only the desired amount of the licence, in tons, should be stated; on page 3 and copies, the applicant's name and address and the description of goods (as above) should be entered.

Importers are reminded that the issue of a licence by the Board of Trade does not relieve them from compliance with any other regulations or restrictions to which the goods may be subject, in particular the Animal Health Regulations.

Reduction of 45 per cent. Purchase Tax Rate

H.M. Customs and Excise announce that the Chancellor of the Exchequer has decided to reduce from 45 per cent. to 25 per cent. the rate of Purchase Tax on all the goods to which the 45 per cent. rate now applies. The Treasury have made an Order accordingly, entitled the Purchase Tax (No. 7) Order, 1962. The Order came into effect on January 1, 1963.

The principal goods affected by the Order are:

Radio and television sets, and valves and loudspeakers suitable for use with them
Gramophones and radiogramophones
Gramophone records
Perfumery and cosmetics, and certain other toilet and hairdressing goods

The Order does not affect goods which are already taxable at 25 per cent. or at any lower rate.

The Order applies to goods which are despatched on sale by registered to unregistered traders, or are appropriated to use, to retail trading or to similar purposes by a registered trader on or after January 1, 1963, and to imported goods entered with Customs or delivered from bonded warehouse for home use on or after that date.

Copies of the Order are obtainable from H.M. Stationery Office, York House, Kingsway, London, W.C.2, and branches, or through any bookseller.

Consequential amendments to the tax Schedule

The fusion of the 45 per cent. rate with the existing 25 per cent. rate makes certain consequential amendments necessary in the statutory tax Schedule. The Order provides for these. They are as follows:

(i) in Groups 18, 19(b), 19(c), 30(a) and 30(b) the rate of tax is amended from 45 per cent. to 25 per cent.

(ii) in the statutory heading of Group 30(a) the words after "any such process" are amended so as to read "but not including articles comprised in Group 2"

(iii) that part of the statutory heading of Group 31 which precedes the exemption is amended so as to read:
GROUP 31
Toilet requisites, except face cloths and towels 25 per cent.

(iv) the statutory heading of Group 32 is amended so as to read:
GROUP 32
(a) Perfumery 25 per cent.
(b) Toilet preparations, whether medicated or not, including cosmetics 25 per cent.

Purchase Tax on Drugs and Medicines

THE COMMISSIONERS of Customs and Excise have made a Direction under Section 6(4) of the Finance Act, 1962, entitled the Purchase Tax (No. 3) Direction, 1962, which temporarily exempts further essential drugs and medicines from tax. The effect of the Direction, which became operative on December 21, 1962, is to make the following additions to the Schedule to the Purchase Tax (No. 2) Order, 1961.

To Head II of the Schedule

Acetohexamide;
4-(4-Methoxy-1-naphthyl)-4-oxobutyric acid and salts thereof;
Oxethazaine, whether or not mixed with aluminium hydroxide gel and magnesium hydroxide;
Triclofos and salts thereof.

To Head III of the Schedule

Di-2-chloroethyl 3-chloro-4-methylcoumarin-7-yl phosphate;
Ethoheptazine citrate, whether or not mixed with acetylsalicylic acid;
Ethylenediamine dihydroiodide;
Iron complexed with one or more of the amino acids obtained by the hydrolysis of proteins or such acids prepared synthetically.

The Treasury will, in due course, be asked to make an Order which will give permanent statutory effect to this Direction. Traders known to be concerned are being separately notified.

The Pipelines Act, 1962

THE MINISTRY of Power announce that the Pipelines Act, 1962, which came into full operation on January 1, 1963, makes provision for regulating and facilitating the construction of pipelines, and imposes certain obligations, in the interests of safety, on the owners of both new and existing lines. It will be necessary to obtain the authorization of the Minister of Power before constructing an industrial pipeline more than ten miles long (a cross-country pipeline) and to give him sixteen weeks' notice before constructing one not more than ten miles long (a local pipeline). Plans of such pipelines must be deposited with the local authorities affected. There are provisions covering the compulsory acquisition of land or rights, and the placing of pipelines in streets. Persons or firms who are contemplating laying pipelines may find it helpful to discuss their plans informally with the Ministry of Power in the first instance.

In the interests of safety, the Minister may impose conditions on the construction of pipelines, and on their operation, in the latter case including those in existence before the commencement of the Act. The owners of pipelines, including existing lines, must inform the Minister of serious accidents or fires, and must make arrangements for notifying fire brigades, police, river boards, water and sewerage authorities, etc. of any accident affecting their duties, and if requested must provide such bodies in advance with the necessary maps and information. They must inform the Minister on abandoning or re-commissioning a pipeline, and must also inform the Minister and persons with land interests along the route of a line of any change in its ownership.

Design Appreciation Courses for Engineers

THE Council of Industrial Design, which has held successful courses for engineering executives and staff over the past four years, is to hold four more such courses in London in 1963. They will be open to engineers from both capital goods and consumer goods industries to ensure a fruitful exchange of ideas.

Two residential five-day periods have been arranged. The first is occupied by a series of lectures on subjects including design progress, design policy in a large organization, human factors in design, an analysis of design, form and composition; and there is also an examination of actual objects and a visit to The Design Centre. This is followed by the second residential period consisting of lectures by practising designers, an assessment of the students' projects, and visits to various training colleges.

Full details and application forms are now available from W. H. Mayall, Industrial Division, CoID, for the spring executives' course and from Miss Sydney Foott, Education Officer, CoID, for the spring staff course. In both cases, the address is 28 Haymarket, London, S.W.1.

Index of Industrial Production

THE PROVISIONAL index of production for October, 1962, prepared by the Central Statistical Office, is 115 (seasonally adjusted). This brings the average for August-October to the same level as in the previous three months, when output was running four per cent. above the low point at the turn of the year.

The average index numbers for the latest three months and the previous three months at the foot of the table give a general guide to the changes which have taken place in the output of the major industry groups in recent months. Several of the figures here and elsewhere in the table have been revised as later information has become available.

Import and Export Prices in November

THE OVERALL import and export prices and the terms of trade for November were unchanged from the October levels of 96, 114 and 84 respectively (1954=100).

Although the total import price index remained unchanged from last month there were decreases of almost one per cent. in the index for basic materials and of one half per cent. in the fuels index. These changes were offset by a small increase in the index for the food, beverages and tobacco class of imports, reflected as one point in the rounded index, and an increase of one half per cent. in the manufactured goods index.

There was a small rise in the export price index for manufactured goods, reflected as an increase of one point in the rounded index. This was mainly due to increases of about one half per cent. in the engineering products index and of one per cent. in the other manufactured goods index. These increases were, in part, offset by decreases of about one half per cent. in the indices of metals and textiles exports.

The method of calculating the import and export price index was explained in the Board of Trade Journal of May 2, 1958.

United Kingdom Trade in November

EXPORTS in November were low. The value, seasonally adjusted, was £304 million, compared with the record £336 million in October and the average in the third quarter of £320 million. At least part of the November movement is likely to have been erratic – the decline affected most goods and most markets. Comparing the latest three months with the previous three months, in order to smooth out the erratic movements, the rate of exports was virtually unchanged. The area analysis shows (again comparing three months with three months) continued expansion of shipments to Western Europe and further recovery in exports to the sterling area. Exports to the United States also increased further. There were increases (three months on three months) in exports of machinery and instruments and of road vehicles.

The value of imports in the three months September-November was about the same as in June-August. Imports of industrial materials and finished manufactures have been rising and imports of fuels have been at a high rate in recent months as a result of the cold weather earlier in the year and increased exports of refined petroleum to Europe. On the other hand, imports of food, beverages and tobacco have been falling since the summer when they were inflated by large landings of fruit and vegetables and animal feeding stuffs.

The deficit in the balance of trade (the difference between imports c.i.f. and exports and re-exports f.o.b.) in September-November was £47 million a month, seasonally adjusted, the same as in the previous three months, June-August. In the second quarter it was £35 million a month and in the first £49 million.

Exports

The main development in the area pattern of exports in recent months has been the levelling out in exports to the Common Market countries. In fact comparing the latest three months with the previous three months, exports to Common Market countries fell by 2 per cent.; some of the reduction was in exports of oil to the Netherlands but there are also signs that the rate of growth of our exports to EFTA countries (4 per cent. more) and to the rest of Western Europe (19 per cent. more).

Exports to the sterling area have been recovering this year and in the last three months they were 1 per cent. more, seasonally adjusted, than in the previous three months. Exports to Australia were rising quite quickly in the first half of the year and have since continued to increase slowly but exports to New Zealand have fallen in recent months after a sharp increase in the second quarter. In the last three months there have been sizeable increases in exports to India, South Africa and to other sterling area countries. Exports to North America have been erratic mainly because of fluctuations in exports to Canada. Exports to Canada in the last three months were 9 per cent. less than in the previous three months. Exports to the United States have continued to increase and in September-November were 1 per cent. more than in June-August.

Our exports to Latin America have shown a decline this year. In the last three months these exports were much less than in the previous three months with substantial falls in exports to the Argentine, Brazil and Venezuela and a smaller reduction in exports to Mexico. Exports to the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe have been increasing and in the last three months there was a further rise of 5 per cent. Exports to the rest of the world fell sharply in the third quarter but there is the possibility of some recovery in the last few months. Exports to Japan have been rising after an earlier fall but exports to China and to Indonesia continue to decline.

The commodity analysis shows (comparing seasonally adjusted figures for the latest three months with those for the previous three months) increases of £8 million in exports of engineering products and £5 million in exports of food, beverages and tobacco, more or less balanced by small reductions in a wide range of other goods. Exports of machinery and instruments were 3 per cent. more in the last three months, these exports having risen since the beginning of the year. Exports of road vehicles were 4 per cent. more. There was a marked reduction in export deliveries of ships and boats. Among other manufactured goods there were reductions in exports of textiles, metals and other manufactures; exports of chemicals no longer seem to be rising after the fairly rapid growth of the early months of this year. Exports of food, beverages and tobacco were falling this year until the third quarter but have recovered sharply in the last two months. In September-November they were 10 per cent. more than in the previous three months, with large increases in exports of cereals and whisky. Exports of fuels and lubricants in the last three months were 8 per cent. less than in the previous three months when there had been large exports of refined petroleum to Germany and the Netherlands. There was a small reduction in exports of basic materials.

Imports

Imports of industrial materials have been rising since the middle of the year and there was a further increase of 3 per cent. in the last three months. The whole of the increase, £13 million, was in imports of basic materials which were 6 per cent. more; there was no change in imports of manufactures for further processing. The largest increases were in imports of raw wool and raw cotton with smaller increases spread over a wide range of materials. Imports of finished manufactures have been rising quickly since the middle of the year, after a small fall in the second quarter, and in the last three months they were 5 per cent. more than in the previous three months. Part of the increase was due to exceptional arrivals of ships in October but there have also been increases in imports of machinery and instruments, with larger imports of radio, television, etc., apparatus, and increasing imports of clothing and other consumer goods. Imports of mineral fuels and lubricants increased sharply in the third quarter and a high rate has been maintained in recent months; in September-November they were 3 per cent. more than in June-August. These high fuel imports were mainly the result of cold weather earlier in the year but partly also of increased exports of refined petroleum in the summer.

Imports of food and feeding stuff were large in the early months of this year but have since fallen away. For food, beverages and tobacco as a whole imports in the last three months were 8 per cent. (£32 million) (seasonally adjusted) less than in the previous three months. There were reductions of 11 per cent. (£9 million) in imports of cereals and feeding stuffs and 15 per cent. (£12 million) in imports of fruit and vegetables. There was also a substantial fall in imports of tobacco but little change in the value of imports of meat and meat preparations and dairy products.

In the last three months there was a fall of 14 per cent. in the value of imports from Latin America, the source of much of the increased imports of cereals and animal feeding stuffs earlier this year. There were also reductions in imports from North America and from the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. These reductions were offset by increases from the sterling area, with large imports of tea from India, from Western Europe, where a large increase in imports from EFTA countries more than compensated for substantial reductions in imports from the Common Market, and from the rest of Western Europe, and the rest of the world, mainly Japan and non-sterling primary producers.

THE PROVISIONAL index of industrial production for Northern Ireland for October 1962, prepared by the Ministry of Commerce, is 119 (1958=100). This is two points lower than the index for September 1962, and three points higher than the index for October 1961.

The index numbers of the main industrial groups in October 1962, with the increase or decrease on October 1961, shown in brackets are: textiles 122 (+7 points); clothing 125 (+3); engineering and metals 96 (−7); food, drink and tobacco 121 (−3); timber and furniture 129 (+1); other manufacturing industries 145 (+4); construction 132 (+25); gas, electricity and water 139 (+10).

The Register of Restrictive Trading Agreements

Additions and Amendments to the Register

A list of additions and amendments made to the alphabetical index to the register between October 1 and December 31, 1962, is given below; the amendments are shown in italics. The index as it stood at July 30, 1957, was published in the Board of Trade Journal on August 16, 1957 (pages 371-378), to which subsequent additions and amendments have been published at approximately quarterly intervals – the last on October 5, 1962.

The purpose of the index is to help the public in searching for agreements in the public register itself. The index shows commodities which are the subject of agreements on the register, and the commodities are described exactly as they are in the particulars submitted to the Registrar of the agreements concerned. Where an agreement operates in a particular area, this has been indicated whenever practicable. The symbol 'C' indicates that the agreement in question has been referred to the Restrictive Practices Court and that the Court has made a declaration or order, a copy of which has been entered on the registered file. Symbol 'D' means that an agreement has been determined; 'E' signifies that an agreement has expired or will expire at a given date; and 'F' indicates that an agreement has been varied, whether by the removal of registrable restrictions or otherwise as to its terms or parties, so that it would not have been registrable at all had it taken the varied form at the time of registration. The date following each symbol indicates the month concerned.

'D' and 'F' Agreements

The list below, headed 'D' and 'F' Agreements, brings up to date at December 31, 1962, the list of agreements determined or varied as described above. Although these agreements already appear in the above-mentioned lists of additions and amendments, they are shown separately under this heading for the benefit of readers. Agreements which were registered as running for a specified period which has now expired, or will expire on a given date (i.e. those marked 'E' in the main list), are not included in the 'D' and 'F' list; in many cases these 'E' agreements are intended to be renewed or re-made in a similar form on expiry.

It should be noted that the inclusion of an agreement about a commodity in the 'D' and 'F' list does not necessarily mean that there are no other restrictive agreements about that commodity. Further, a 'D' or 'F' agreement may sometimes be replaced by a new agreement which will appear in the main list of additions and amendments when it is registered.

Agreements referred to the Restrictive Practices Court

On April 10, 1959, there was published in the Board of Trade Journal (page 859) a list of all agreements in respect of which Notices of Reference (constituting formal commencement of proceedings before the Restrictive Practices Court) had been issued, except those which had already been dealt with by the Court. Subsequent additions have been published at quarterly intervals but no Notices of Reference have been issued during the October-December 1962 quarter. Anyone who may be in a position to assist the Court with evidence from his own experience of results of any of these agreements which he thinks affects the public interest, is asked to communicate as early as possible with the Treasury Solicitor's Branch, Office of the Registrar of Restrictive Trading Agreements, Chancery House, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.2. The agreements shown in square brackets have been abandoned after the issue of a Notice of Reference.

Inspection of the Register

The register may be inspected at a fee of 1s. per day, between 10 a.m. and 4.30 p.m. on any weekday except Saturday and certain holidays at any of the following addresses:

Office of the Registrar of Restrictive Trading Agreements,
Chancery House, Chancery Lane, London, W.C.2.
9 Wemyss Place, Edinburgh, 3.
Chichester House, 64 Chichester Street, Belfast.

The indexes to the register, one as published in the Board of Trade Journal and one in which commodities are grouped by classes, may be inspected at these addresses free of charge.

135 New Jobs: Scottish Printing Company to Expand

GILMOUR AND DEAN, LTD., the Glasgow colour printers, are to expand, with financial assistance from the Board of Trade, in a factory under construction at Hamilton and due for completion early in 1963. The company is restricted by lack of space in its present premises and the move to Hamilton under the Glasgow overspill arrangement will allow 135 additional jobs to be created of which at least half will be for men.

The company is confident that virtually all the present labour force will transfer to the new works which will be one of the most modern in the printing industry. Mr. W. W. Finlay, the managing director of Gilmour and Dean, Ltd., when acknowledging the Board of Trade's assistance said: 'If more concerns in Scotland realized how much the Board of Trade can help, it would lead to more efforts to establish or expand industry.'

Another U.S. Firm Starts in Northern Ireland

THE NORTHERN IRELAND Development Council announced on December 19 that Polythane Fibres Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Polythane Corporation of New York, is to manufacture Spandex synthetic fibres in a 90,000 sq. ft. factory at Canmoney, Belfast. This is the second United States firm in ten days to choose Northern Ireland as its European production base.

Anglo-Soviet Trade Agreement: Quotas for Consumer Goods, Capital Goods and Some Industrial Materials

IN ACCORDANCE with Articles 2(2) and 4 of the Anglo-Soviet Trade Agreement of 1959, the Board of Trade and the Soviet Trade Delegation in the United Kingdom have recently conducted negotiations to settle quotas for trade in consumer goods and certain capital goods and industrial materials for the period from January 1, 1963 to June 30, 1964.

The quotas for Soviet consumer goods to be imported into the United Kingdom amount to £4,840,000 c.i.f. The quotas for British consumer goods to be imported into the U.S.S.R. amount to £4,400,000 f.o.b. Two-thirds of these quotas will be available for use in 1963 and one-third in the first half of 1964. Expressed as an annual rate, the total of quotas is almost exactly the same as in 1962, but the arrangements for individual products vary to some extent.

The quotas for trade in capital goods, equipment and certain industrial materials extend pro rata those in force in 1962. The Board of Trade will issue licences for these goods up to a total of £4,125,000 c.i.f. The Soviet authorities will issue licences for up to £1,125,000 for scientific and other instruments, £1,125,000 for chemicals and £750,000 for man-made fibres and yarns. Two-thirds of these amounts will be available in 1963 and one-third in the first half of 1964. Full details of the quotas are published below.

The Anglo-Soviet Trade Agreement provides that negotiations shall take place annually to settle quotas for trade in both directions in consumer goods and in other goods where open general licence arrangements are not in force. Since the present Agreement has only another 18 months to run, the two sides have agreed that it is convenient to settle quotas for that period.

Over 90 per cent. of Anglo-Soviet trade takes place outside these quotas. Imports from the U.S.S.R. from January to November, 1962, amounted to £77.7m and exports from the United Kingdom to the U.S.S.R. in the same period amounted to £38.2m. Re-exports amounted to £14.5m.

EOM

ECONOMIC OFFICE MODERNISATION and you

All over the country, especially in London and the major provincial cities, old office buildings are being pulled down and replaced with modern, efficient but very expensive blocks. With the cost of labour rising too, the whole economics of business operation in these new offices is a subject causing great concern to many small and medium size businesses today.

This free booklet explains the basic principles

Many top executives have said of this brief booklet ". . . at last, here is a commonsense approach". It is quite free; simply attach the slip below to your letterheading.

Please send me a copy of your booklet "A new Concept in Office Planning". Mark for the attention of :

..... 41

One solution can be seen in the many mergers and amalgamations of businesses which have taken place, in an effort to provide larger and more economic units. But this in itself is not enough.

EOM the real solution

EOM has been defined as the streamlining of office administration by the proper planning of people, equipment and methods to take the maximum advantage of the available space and to provide financial savings to offset higher rents and higher wages.

EOM is 'concept' – a concept which looks at a whole business as a functional machine and does not attempt to modify any part of it without regard to its effect on the whole. EOM is a concept which plans a whole business for a maximum efficiency in the minimum of space. EOM is a SHANNON concept.

Tariff, Customs, Import and Other Regulations in Overseas Countries

Registered Trade Mark (rtm) Goods in Overseas Tariff Lists

THE LISTS OF TARIFF, Customs and import regulation changes in overseas countries published in this section of the Journal sometimes contain words which are registered trade marks in the United Kingdom. So far as is practicable, all lists of goods are checked before publication from this point of view.

Items which fall into this category will now be prefixed by the letters 'r t m'. Readers of the Journal should note that this prefix signifies that the words are registered trade marks in the United Kingdom, but that in the present context they are assumed to refer generally to products of the description stated in brackets.

While every attempt will be made to ensure that the scrutiny is complete, the lists may contain other words which are registered as trade marks in the United Kingdom or in other countries but which it has not been possible to identify.

NOTICE

The use of an alphabetical sequence as an easy reference has been found impracticable in the compilation of the Tariff Customs and Import Regulations of Overseas Countries. Every attempt is made therefore to group countries by Continents as far as possible. The leading notice is selected on the basis of its overall importance to traders. The fact that a country occasionally appears out of context arises from technical modifications unavoidable in the making-up of these pages.

? RAHU SADDLE!

For what kind of horse is that?

Your astonishment is understandable. To reach this saddle you'd have to climb two thousand feet en route from Springs Junction to Reefton in faraway New Zealand. And if that seems a surprising piece of information for a bank to dispense, let us quickly add that we bow to nobody in our knowledge of New Zealand. For we are the National Bank of New Zealand and, as such, can claim to know practically all there is to know about our country. This is explained both by the fact that we have been established since 1872 and that we have more than 160 branches and agencies in the North and South Islands. Against such a background, we have acquired an intimate understanding of New Zealand's way of life. So if you want to know anything about anything to do with New Zealand, ask us –

We're thinking of setting up in Australia

Many expanding U.K. firms have already done so, helped more often than not by Australia and New Zealand Bank. And to other manufacturers contemplating the same development, the Bank will gladly give similar assistance. A valuable introduction to such a move is provided by the Bank's 70-page book Establishment of Industry in Australia, produced especially for industrialists who may be considering that country as a further base for their company's operations.

Subjects include company formation, market potential, taxation, labour, transport, power supplies, tariff protection and local regulations. We shall be pleased to send you a free copy if you write to

EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY

Rules of Competition

THE BOARD OF TRADE JOURNAL of November 23, 1962, pages 1090-1, contained an unofficial translation of four announcements and amendments thereto made by the Commission of the European Economic Community about proposals for the application of Article 85 of the Treaty of Rome to certain classes of agreements.

This matter has now been considered by the Commission who on December 21, 1962 issued a press release regarding the procedures to be adopted in relation to the classes of agreements referred to above. The text of this press release is reproduced below. As soon as it is available information will be given in the Board of Trade Journal on the texts of the two items referred to therein which are to be published in the Journal Officiel des Communautes Europeenes.

At its meeting of December 20, 1962 the EEC Commission, considering the numerous comments it has received in connection with its notifications published in the official gazette of November 9, 1962, and considering the opinions given by the Advisory Committee of representatives of Member States, has decided as follows:

1. Without prejudice to the interpretation of Article 85 in other cases, the Commission will give notice in the next official gazette of the conditions under which it will regard commercial agency contracts or patent licence contracts as not falling within the scope of paragraph 1 of Article 85 of the EEC Treaty, so that they are not banned under EEC law and registration is not required. This notice will also cover those agreements in the field of patent licence contracts for which originally a collective exception was envisaged.
2. Licence contracts which are caught by Article 85 (1) of the Treaty and which do not comply with the conditions set out in Article 4 (2) or Article 5 (2) of Regulation 17, must still be registered on Form B if the benefit of Article 85 (3) is to be claimed in respect of them.
3. The Commission has refrained from granting at this stage certain collective exceptions under Article 85 (3), because the comments received have shown that the object of establishing greater certainty as to law cannot be attained at present.
4. Exclusive dealing agreements between a producer and a dealer, which fall within the scope of Article 85 (1) and which do not fulfil the special conditions set out in Article 4 (2) of Regulation 17 must be registered if the benefit of Article 85 (3) of the Treaty is to be claimed in respect of them. Where both parties to such an agreement have their place of business in the same Member State, Article 85 (1) will not as a rule apply for the time being.
5. In order to take account of the request for fewer formalities, it seemed appropriate so far as possible to simplify the registration of certain exclusive dealing agreements. The Commission has accordingly decided to issue a regulation amending Regulation 27, and this will be published in the next official gazette. This amending regulation requires only the partner(s) to the agreement and the date of the agreement to be registered. If a firm uses a standard agreement, it will suffice to mention the partner thereto, and the date on which it was concluded, in order to register it.

   No particular form is prescribed, all that is necessary is that the wording prescribed in the regulation for registration purposes shall be included in the application for registration.
6. The simplified registration procedure will be used only for such exclusive dealing agreements as involve no more than two firms and – do not result in any mutual exclusive dealing in products which form the subject of competition and which both the licensor and the licensee produce, do not hinder
   intermediaries or consumers from obtaining the product from another licensed dealer or any intermediary within the Common Market, or licensed dealers from supplying customers outside the area covered by their licence, and do not contain any obligation on the licensed dealer to maintain a fixed minimum price determined by the licensor.

   Any exclusive dealing agreements which do not comply with these conditions, and in particular those which contain import or export bans or will indirectly have a comparable effect, will not qualify for the simplified registration procedure. If Article 85 (3) of the Treaty is to be invoked for them, and Article 4 (2) of Regulation 17 does not apply, they must be registered in seven copies on Form B.
7. The Commission intends to submit to the Council a proposal whereby the possibility of a subsequent collective exception will be left open; it will also propose appropriate procedure.

One further Regulation has been adopted by the Council of the European Economic Community in the matter of the application of Articles 85 and 86 of the Treaty of Rome. This Regulation, No. 141, published in the Journal Officiel des Communautes Europeenes dated November 28, 1962, exempts from the application of Regulation No. 17 (see Board of Trade Journal dated March 9, 1962) agreements, decisions and concerted practices which directly concern the supply of transport services. In the case of transport by rail, road and inland waterways this exemption is applicable until December 31, 1965 only.

The text of this Regulation, in French, may be seen at Export Services Branch, Board of Trade, Hillgate House, 35 Old Bailey, London, E.C.4. (Tel. City 5757. Extns. 480 and 481).

Are these your markets?

Important though it is, Europe is not the only market. Valuable trading opportunities exist in the Commonwealth and other countries outside Europe. To assist those who trade (or wish to trade) in these areas Westminster Bank is producing a new series of booklets each of which contains much helpful information about trading conditions in a particular country. The first two booklets in the series—dealing with Australia and Canada—are ready now.
